SHOULD THE GOVERNMENT START ISSUING CITATIONS FOR VIOLATIONS OF COVID RULES?

MAYOR'S MESSAGE TO THE CITIZENS OF MILLCREEK:

I am sorry to bother you with another COVID message, however, like many local officials, I am at wits end about how to convince people to team up to help us beat this disease.

As winter approaches, COVID cases in Salt Lake County and all across Utah have exploded past warm-weather levels, causing our healthcare system to be stressed as ICU and hospital beds fill up. Doctors and hospital administrators are talking about the real possibility of having to make hard decisions about who is going to get treatment. This threatens difficulty for everyone, including people experiencing the usual, non-COVID health issues that require hospitalization.

In local government, we have been beseeched by many who want us do more to enact or enforce restrictions to battle the pandemic. We also hear from those who believe government has gone too far already. Based upon revisions to state law enacted by the Utah legislature in special session this past summer, we in local government are restricted in what we are allowed to do. Public health orders may only be issued at the county level and only with the governor's consent. Except for directing our police to enforce existing county public health orders, mayors and city councils are powerless beyond giving encouragement to follow the rules. So that leaves us in a quandary.

Is enforcement the community's most effective course of action? Would issuing citations help? Or would that be counterproductive, spurring even more irresponsible, rebellious activity, like the recent Halloween party at Utah Lake? Since the data suggests that the virus is spreading more in private social gatherings than in public settings, how would citations work or be of real benefit? I suppose a few examples in public settings could be made. What about in private homes? How would that be done? Do we really need or even want to do that?

Fundamentally, we all have to rely upon each other to act with personal responsibility to do the right thing for our families, our neighbors and ourselves. No one likes wearing a mask. Limiting our social interactions with non-household family, friends or kids' playmates is hard on us all. But if we want to reopen our economy and get back to normal life, we all must do what is required to beat this pandemic. That requires these sacrifices. With the holidays fast approaching, it will be even harder. The alternative will result in the virus spreading even further and more people dying, either from the virus or complications from not having access to required medical care because our healthcare system is overloaded.

As you make choices about your day-to-day activities and get-togethers, please think about how stressed our healthcare workers have become, working overtime and watching people in their care die, alone without their families. Think about how the virus affects others, not just yourself or your immediate family members. COVID-19 kills people, and not just old or sick people. While you might recover quickly, you might not be so lucky. You and many others are at risk for long-lingering effects that could last a lifetime.

We need to count on ourselves to beat this pandemic, not the government trying to do something it's really not equipped to do. It's just not realistic to think we can enforce our way out of this. Instead, we need to follow what the medical community has told us to do: wear a mask, limit our social interactions, wash our hands, and stay home when ill. This comes down to simply respecting each other. Please stay well.

--Mayor Jeff Silvestrini

ALMOST 15,000 UTAHNS TESTED POSITIVE FOR COVID IN THE LAST SEVEN DAYS.

CONSIDER TAKING A 2-WEEK PAUSE BEFORE
THANKSGIVING FROM ANY SOCIAL GATHERING OUTSIDE YOUR HOUSEHOLD GROUP.

THIS COULD CUT DOWN THE SPREAD AND WOULD REALLY ASSIST OUR HEALTHCARE WORKERS.

MILLCREEK YOUTH COUNCIL GIVES BACK TO COMMUNITY

MILLCREEK. In the time of COVID-19, it can be hard to find ways to serve the community while still following safety guidelines, but the Millcreek Youth Council took the challenge in stride. The Youth Council decided to spend their Saturday mornings in October cleaning up Millcreek's parks. In a couple of the parks, they estimate that they picked up between 30 and 50 pounds of trash. We are constantly impressed and grateful to the Youth Council for their examples and hard work.

If you or someone you know owns a business in Millcreek and would be interested in partnering with the Youth Council for future fundraising events, please email the Youth Council at youthcouncil@millcreek.us.

SNOW RULES

MILLCREEK. Snow is in the forecast for this weekend. That means it's time to move vehicles off the street. Per Millcreek's ordinances, "No person shall park a vehicle on any city street when it is snowing or snow is on the street during the months of November, December, January, February, March, and April." Millcreek Code 11.20.130

When vehicles are parked on the street (including trailers and campers), the plows cannot clear the roadway adequately. Additionally, vehicles are at risk of being hit by a plow. The snow plow drivers will not attempt to clear a street where vehicles are parked in a way that the driver does not feel safe. That means that the street will not be plowed.

The Central Wasatch Commission has opened a 30-day public comment period for the Draft Central Wasatch National Conservation and Recreation Area Act.

CENTRAL WASATCH, UTAH. The Central Wasatch Commission has released a new draft of the Central Wasatch National Conservation and Recreation Area Act (CWNCRA). The document will be available for public review and comment through December 5, 2020.

There are three documents to review:

- A summary of the 10/27/20 Draft CWNCRA Legislation. This provides an overview of the changes since the last public review draft, including a narrative description and the background of the Central Wasatch National Conservation Recreation Area Act.
- The 10/27/20 Public Discussion Draft of the CWNCRA.
- The 10/27/20 Draft Proposed Central Wasatch Conservation and Recreation Area Map.

You may find those documents and submit a comment on the draft bill here:

Leaf Bags Still Available!

MILLCREEK. The Fall Leaf Collection Program ends on November 30th. You can pick up leaf bags at City Hall. Limited to 10 per household, the bags are available while supplies last. You can also use your own bags.

Filled bags (containing only leaves) can be dropped off until November 30th at:

- Canyon Rim Park: 3100 E. 3100 S.
- Cottonwood Ball Complex: 4400 S. 1300 E. (north side only)

Removing leaves from your property is important for avoiding problems with storm drain clogs and potential flooding as we move into the winter season. Remember, we all live downstream!!
