NEWS

"The Emerald Ribbon of the Wasatch Front"

A Message from Councilmember Silvia Catten

MILLCREEK. Nearly eight years into our cityhood and I still encounter surprise when residents learn that our city's most western boundary is, in fact, the Jordan River. Their surprise is met with my enthusiastic support that the Jordan River is a hidden gem in our city. Before my appointment to the Jordan River Commission (JRC) in 2018, I admittedly knew very little about the river. But in the last few years I've had the privilege to serve and learn how important this piece of nature is to our entire valley.

Churchill Jr. High

Commission

See Agenda Below

The 51-mile-long, north-flowing waterway connects Utah Lake to the Great Salt Lake and has been a critical ecological feature of our valley for thousands of years. Archaeological evidence suggests it was used by Archaic nomadic populations some 3,000 years ago, followed by local indigenous peoples like the Utes and Shoshones, and later, Mormon settlers.

Modern populations used it for sewage and waste disposal, contributing to its decades-long polluted state before the federal Clean Water Act was enacted in the 1970s. Around the same time, the Jordan River Parkway was officially established bringing flood control measures, cleanup, and plans for recreational opportunities. The Blueprint Jordan River was created in 2008 as an official and comprehensive plan to support a vision that the river could be a defining amenity for the region.

The work that is going into the many urban and ecological developments in and around the entire river is unprecedented and continuous. Here are a few highlights:

This month the Jordan River Commission is holding its 11th annual Get to the River Festival, a growing months-long celebration of all-things Jordan River, featuring recreation and conservation activities along the river corridor. The celebration will include the announcement of the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation's America the Beautiful Challenge Grant, a $5 million pot of funds that will directly impact ecological restoration along the Jordan River. Learn more about the many Get to The River events on the JRC website.

On Tuesday, 9/24/24, at 7pm, there will be a Get To The River film screening, The Politics of Beauty, at city hall as part of the festival. Register for the screening HERE.

With the shortest river frontage of any other city along the river—a mere 0.7 of a mile—Millcreek has made investments to utilize the river as a mode of transportation and recreational convenience to residents. The newly constructed trail loop and bridge on the east side of the river brings the Parkway into Millcreek and will eventually connect some of our westside neighborhoods to the river. Plans for improved parking and other amenities at our section of the Parkway are currently underway.

Additional trail connections to the Jordan River Parkway were included in UDOT's first round of funding for the Utah Trail Network—a $95 million investment, which includes $10 million for the 3900 South shared use path from West Temple to the Parkway trail—a huge win for Millcreek.

Other notable initiatives not in Millcreek but that will have a big impact on the river include large housing developments in Saratoga Springs that will bring improvements and standards to the south end of the river, the Point of the Mountain (old prison site) development, and the newly-planned Power District near the State Fairpark in Salt Lake City, which includes plans for a new MLB stadium featuring the river as a focal point of the area.

As my time as Chair of the Commission for the last two years comes to an end, I've reflected on the work the JRC is doing to protect the river, which includes a vision that the river is for everyone, and that we are all stewards of this precious resource. I take that to heart and believe it to be true. It seems fitting that the river is a part of our city—we are, after all, connected by nature.

September is National Preparedness Month

The theme for week two (September 9-15) is:

Have a Plan

- #StartAConversation: Your emergency plans can include contact information to stay in touch during a disaster, where you & your pets will stay if you must leave home, and the latest safety information to share with friends and family. Ready.gov/Start
- In a disaster, sometimes it's best to stay home, but going to a different place may be the best way to stay safe. When deciding to stay or evacuate, always pay attention to directions from your local police, fire department, or elected officials.
- Before a disaster happens, you should know where you, your family and your pets will go if you are told to evacuate. This could be a friend or relative's house, a community shelter in your neighborhood, or a hotel in another town.
- If you do not have a car, plan how you will leave if needed. Work with family and friends, and check with your local emergency management office to see what resources may be available

Request for Parley's Canyon Gravel Mine Photos

Urgent Request - We are asking that all residents who might be traveling in Parleys Canyon or at the mouth of the canyon who may notice a dust cloud originating from the existing gravel mine to take photos, note the date, time of day, and weather conditions (windy, clear, temperature, etc.) and send the information to Francis Lilly, flilly@millcreekut.gov. See examples below.

We appreciate your assistance in this important project.
